Neoliberalism in south africa pdf

On the southern coast of South Africa's Western Cape Province lies Hermanus, a tourist hotspot that is part luxury resort, part old-fashioned fishing village. The city overlooks Walker Bay, where southern right-wing whales gather between June and December each year. Consequently, Hermanus has gained a reputation as the best land whale-lemás target in Africa; if not the world. Whales, however, are not the only reason to visit. Hermanus is also known for its gourmet restaurants, fertile wine regions, and an impressive selection of boutiques and galleries. All the many charms combine to make it one of the highlights of the road between Cape Town and the start of the Garden Route in Mossel Bay. The number one reason to visit Hermanus is to catch a glimpse of the southern right whales that populate Walker Bay from June to early December. Whales migrate annually to South Africa's Cape Whale Coast from their Antarctic feeding site and spend their time mating, feeding and raising their youngsters. Hermanus Cliff Path and Gearing's Point both provide high field of view points where spectators watch whales play just a few hundred metres from shore. The city even has its own Whale Crier, who warns locals and tourists when a whale is spotted blown into a seaweed horn. Land whale watching is both rewarding and free, but if you want to get even closer to whales, it's worth paying for a boat trip with a licensed company like Southern Right Charters. As well as southern right whales, you also have the opportunity to search for other South African marine life, including humpback and Bryde whales, two species of dolphin, Cape fur seals, and endangered African penguins. Aerial whale strikes another unforgettable opportunity. Every September, the Hermanus Whale Festival celebrates the city's most famous residents with three days of environmental talks, movie performances, beach clean-ups, street parades, food stalls, and performers. There are also plenty of fun activities for kids, including Pirates & Mermaids Treasure Hunt. If your visit doesn't fall into place at the festival, you can learn more about the whales and whaling industry that once operated out of nearby Betty's Bay either at the Old Harbour Museum or the Whale House Museum. The latter contains a full-size southern right whale skeleton, the wildest animal/Getty Images Hermanus also has more than its fair share of beautiful beaches. Grotto Beach is the largest and most visited, covering more than 11 miles. Part of the beach has gained Blue Flag status with excellent cleanliness and facilities that include easy parking, lifesavers, and Braai (barbecue) facilities around lagoon mouths. The lagoon is an ideal place for families, providing a safe place for children to swim and play. Other top options include Onrus Beach and Voelklip Beach, both of which are great for surfers. In December, Onrus Beach will host the annual Onrus Classic and Bodyboarding Contest. There are many other ways to get the most out of Hermanus' awesome location between the mountains and the sea. Hermanus Cliff Path is a 7.5-mile coastal path that stretches from New Harbour to Grotto Beach and offers stunning views of Walker Bay and whales along the way. Hikers can also love Fernkloof Nature Reserve, which has 57 km of hiking trails. As part of the Cape Floristic Region, the reserve is a botanical paradise for more than 1,250 plant species, including different types of endemic fynbos. Keep an eye on wildlife ranging from gray rhebok and Cape grysbok to antelope baboons and rock hyraxes. Walker Bay Nature Reserve offers plenty of different outdoor activities such as whale watching, bird feeding, hiking, 4x4 trails, and fishing. If you want to fish, you will need a license; they can be purchased from any post office in South Africa. Other options for water sports enthusiasts include canoeing and kayaking in Klein Lagoon, or sea kayaking in Walker Bay. For golf lovers, Hermanus Golf Course boasts 27 holes dotted with panoramic seaside and mountain views. If you like good food, you'll love Hermanus. The city is full of gourmet restaurants, most of which focus on farm-to-table dining, showing South Africa's plentiful produce. Often, dishes are paired with local wines from the nearby Hemel en Aarde Valley, which translates the term Sky and Earth properly. For breakfast, sample the special sweet and savoury pancakes from bety blue bistro, a bright, minimalist square on the Main Road. For lunch and dinner, The Wine Glass and Pear Tree are tried and true favorites. The former serves small plates and nearly 100 local wines sold from the bottle. The latter is known for its seafood dishes, served al fresco. Both restaurants are very close to Gearing's Point, so if the Whale Crier horn sounds, you can go and watch the whales between courses. If you're in Hermanus for the weekend, head to Hermanus Country Market (held every Saturday morning) to stock up on organic, gourmet treats and local wines before a picnic on Cliff Path. Hermanus accommodation is dominated by boutique hotels and luxury guesthouses. One Marine Drive Boutique Hotel is a fan favorite of all. It has five perfectly furnished guest rooms (each with its own balcony overlooking the sea), a roaring fireplace in the living room and a full homemade breakfast every morning. The 5 star Birkenhead House is another excellent choice. It is located on top of the cliffs and offers stunning views from all 11 rooms, the infinity pool and fine-dining restaurant. The hotel offers spa treatments and all-inclusive rates. An affordable place to rest your head, consider Hermanus Backpacker. This budget pick enjoys an exceptional location in the city centre, just a 15 minute walk from Gearing's Point. Many dormitories you can choose from a private room, some of which have private bathrooms; has; Other facilities include a friendly living room, shared kitchen and garden with pool. Hermanus is a year-round destination and no matter when you travel, there is always something to see and do. If you want to see whales, you need to time your visit to coincide with the June-December whale season. The activity usually peaks in August and September. Weather-wise, Hermanus has a mild Mediterranean climate and follows the same weather patterns as the rest of the Western Cape. Winter (June to August) is the coldest and wettest time of year, with an average of six rainy days per month and temperatures that range from 50 to 66°F (10-19°C). Summer (November to January) is the hottest and driest time of year, with just two days of rain per month and temperatures that range from 59 to 77°F (15-25°C). Therefore, although winter is the best time for spotting whales, summer brings plenty of sunshine and the best season basks in the beach. The best of both worlds, plan your trip for November. Keep in mind that accommodation and tours are booked quickly during the Hermanus Whale Festival (in September) and during the December holidays. Hermanus is located about 75 miles (120 km) southeast of Cape Town. The quickest way to get there is to get to Mother City on the N2 motorway, with a journey of just over 1.5 hours. The scenic route derelicts along the coastal R44 motorway and takes just over 2 hours. When you travel west on the Garden Route, Hermanus is 3.5 hours from Mossel Bay, 1 hour and 45 minutes from Cape Agulhas (the southernmost point in Africa), and 40 minutes from Gansbaai, the great white shark diving capital. Most tourists travel to Hermanus in a rental car. However, if you don't own wheels, there are other options. The Baz bus is a hop-on/hop-off backpacker bus which stops in Hermanus en route to Cape Town in Port Elizabeth (and vice versa). Local tour company Hotspots2c offers highly recommended small-group routes, many of which include a visit to Hermanus. Thank you for let us know!
